Centuries of Creative Cooperation

Stones, such as marble and granite, which gain prominence with durability and aesthetic appearance were used for artistic purposes in addition to architecture for many centuries. Anatolia, described as the cradle of civilizations, was packed with the finest examples of the unity of natural stone and arts; just the same as it is filled with their modern examples in our day.

In this work, from Sencan Mosaics, pieces of marble are almost converted to brushstrokes and created a tableau for us...
